

REIKI - SEKI JI DO

The School 'Seki Ji Do' (the Way of the Stone Temple) offers a Reiki method that combines traditional Japanese techniques with some interesting procedures recently developed in Japan.

Giuseppe Paterniti has practically learned every traditional style (Usui Shiki Ryoho, Komyo Reiki, Gendai Reiki, Usui Reiki Ryoho, and Usui Teate) from some of the most renowned Reiki Masters, and Seki Ji Do is the result of his experience and study. In fact, Seki Ji Do harmoniously blends together the various old and modern Japanese schools.

Free from any 'New Age' interference and from any 'western revision' that have little in common with the Tradition of the original system, the Reiki - Seki Ji Do (the name was suggested to Giuseppe Paterniti by Master Hyakuten Inamoto) is recommended to those who want to learn the true Japanese Reiki method in its purest and most comprehensive form.

Along with the teachings of the Traditional Reiki Ryoho, Seki Ji Do includes particular notions from Morihei Tanaka, the founder of 'Tai Rei Do' *. It is very likely that this doctrine had a strong influence on Mikao Usui Sensei and, therefore, it contributed to the creation of the Reiki method.

The School also provides opportunity to study and practice different methodologies deriving from the Chinese Tradition, which have proven useful to improve health, internal energy and personal development. Along with the Reiki method, Master Giuseppe Paterniti holds regular classes of Qi Gong and Taiji Quan (Tai Chi) in the province of Treviso (Italy) and runs workshops in many parts of the Country.

In terms of 'energy transmission' and 'silent knowledge', the roots of the Reiki - Seki Ji Do lie in the following traditional lineage:

Usui → Hayashi → Takata → Furumoto

Usui → Hayashi → Yamaguchi → Inamoto

Usui → Taketomi → Koyama → Doi

* Tai Rei Do is a discipline older than Reiki. Its founder, Morihei Tanaka (田中守平 1884 - 1928), was born in the Gifu - prefecture, in a town near Miyama-Cho, which is Mikao Usui's birthplace. Many think that Mikao Usui was one of Morihei Tanaka's disciples or that, at least, he was influenced by his teachings.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION:

www.reikitradizionale.it

info@reikitradizionale.it

(+39) 393 0065154